

1865'S STAR PLAYERS NAMED

KNICKERBOCKER LEADS WITH SIX SELECTIONS; GAME TO BE HELD OUTSIDE OF N.Y.C. FOR 1ST TIME

NEW YORK CITY (July 17, 1865) – Final votes have been tabulated, and with that the rosters for the 1865 All-Star game were named at N.B.B.O. headquarters this afternoon. Once again, there are thirty men per league who will suit up for the contest that will take place in two weeks' time:

- Places 1-6 in each team's roster will go to the best pitchers in each league.
- The remaining 24 roster spots will consist of three players for every other position.

This year's All-Star Game will take place outside of the Elysian Fields for the first time. It was not originally part of the plan for this year's game, but the N.B.B.O. Executive Committee decided while sending voting forms out that St. John's should be honored in some way for having won half of the first eight Tucker-Wheaton Cups. So, the contest will be held at Providence's Olneyville Field on July 31st.

The 1865 All-Star Game will feature 26 first-timers and three N.B.B.O. newcomers. For the New York League, the big-name debut is probably that of James Goodman, as "The Little Professor" has finally come good after eight years of struggling to master his unusual pitching repertoire. Royal Altman & Fred Richards are the two marquee debuts for the Northeastern League, as the two five-star Alleghany newcomers have been every bit as good as promised.

Given that their record is 45-10, it should come as no surprise that Knickerbocker has set an All-Star Game record with six players nominated. They and Kings County are the two teams with two starters: P John McGowan & 3B Hugh Harris for Knickerbocker; 1B Cormack Alexander & CF Declan Brice for Kings Co.

Rosters for the 1865 All-Star Game, with starters highlighted in red, are as follows:

Every one of the six pitchers representing the Northeastern League will be going to the All-Star Game for the first time, and that is why the N.E.L. has a record sixteen debutantes. Not the pitchers do not deserve selection. It has been a banner year for new and unheralded pitchers in the league, and if selection were to be expanded further then 21-year-old Elmer Seabold might have been included as he leads the N.E.L. in strikeouts & W.A.R. but has a slightly high E.R.A. and a middling record.

There are three newcomers in this year's All-Star Game: Royal Altman, Peadar Daly, & Fred Richards. The three first-year players are representing the two best teams in the N.B.B.O: Knickerbocker (Daly) & Alleghany (Altman, Richards).

It will be an exciting afternoon two Mondays from now as the base ball world comes to Providence to celebrate the city's status as the new center of baseball after more than eight and half years of the N.B.B.O, the fans will be able to see the best players in the sport, and as always it will be a wonderful night for charity.
