MANCHESTER, N.H. (July 20, 1865) – In a battle of two middling New England teams, Granite (29-28) had they way with Quinnipiac (29-28) in an easy seven-run home win on Thursday afternoon:

The home team saw a few notable batting performances on the afternoon, but their star performer by far was light-hitting Harvey Kugler. The second-year SS, who has a career average of .275 and a career O.P.S. of 640 (80 OPS+), did the following at the Kalivas Union Baseball Grounds against Quinnipiac:

- B1: 2-run Double to RCF off C. Darnell (scored)
- B4: Double to CF off C. Darnell (scored)
- B5: 1-run Single b/w 1B & 2B off C. Darnell (scored)
- B6: 1-run Single past 2B off C. Darnell
- B8: 2-run Double to CF off O. Hall
- TOTAL: 5/5, 3 2B, 3 R, 6 RBI, 8 TB

It was easily the best batting performance so far in the career of Kugler, who is far better known for his sure hands in the infield. Northeastern League Writers Pool members are calling it the best performance in the N.E.L. this season, and for a day the little middle infielder hit the ball like the giant.
